MR. BYRON V. ROSS is in the city superintending the equipment of a mammoth circus and manager for the coming season.

MR. ROBERT CROMAR, 26 East Fifth street, yesterday made an assignment to O. H. Temple. Property not stated. Bond, $1,000.

MR. J. H. BOGART, of this city, has received a letter from Stockholm, Sweden, asking for impressions and prices of his wood engravings.

LINCOLN LODGE A. O. U. W. gives an entertainment at Spencer Hall, Columbia Township, to-night, for the benefit of Mr. John Holmes.

VOTERS in the Seventh ward nominated J. M. Brunswick for Alderman, H. F. Busch for Councilman and H. J. Wehage for School Visitor last evening.

THE Temperance Fair Committee held a meeting at Y. M. C. A. Hall yesterday, and decided to invite Schuyler Colfax to deliver an address during the progress of the Fair.

THE German Opera last night at Robinson's was a failure so far as audience was concerned, and the managers announced to the few present that no performance would be given.

THE funeral of Miss Mattie E. Omonahuro took place yesterday. The bereaved family are second one of recent date to Mr. Omonahuro, as another daughter, Miss Flora, died but a short time since.

MR. G. H. FELLMAN, of this city, fell off the steamer General Lytle, at Patriot, Indiana, some days since, and was drowned. His body was yesterday recovered and brought to the city for interment.

PETER McHAMP was yesterday arrested by Officers Mead and Duffey, on suspicion. It was subsequently ascertained that he was wanted on some charges at Frankfort, and he was sent there to-day.

THE following ticket was nominated in the Tenth ward last evening: For Council, Joynville Reif and Barney Hill; School Board, Richard Ayers; Assessor, Theodore Holle; Constables, Vic Seibert, Greinebaum and Kramer.

At the spelling match at the Ninth-street Baptist Church last evening, Mrs. Dr. Dalton carried off the first honors by being the last on the floor, Mr. Geo. E. Stevens the second, and Mr. Horace F. Hubbard, of THE STAR, the third.

JIMMY EAGAN, charged with stealing a lot of stone cutters' tools, was convicted in the Police Court this morning and sentenced to thirty days labor on the Colerain pike and a fine of $50. His work-house sentence, however, was suspended.

JOHN DESMOND and Wm. Jackson, who were arrested by Officer Brazier, for playing a trick game on a man named Johnson, and obtaining $5 by its performance, were convicted before Judge Marchant this morning and sentenced to thirty days in the Work-house and to pay a fine of $25 each.

CHAS. WILLINGOR was arraigned in the Police Court this morning on the charge of stealing eighteen beer and wine glasses, valued at $3, from a saloon keeper named Helger. Willingor pleaded guilty to the charge of petit larceny, and was sentenced to thirty days in the Work-house and to pay a fine of $25.

HERMAN SCHRAEDER & Co., 32 Race street, made an assignment to Andrew Erkenscheider of book accounts, furniture, agricultural implements and machinery, several tracts of land in Ripley county, Indiana, several lots in Batesville, Ripley county, and lots on Caloun street in Cincinnati. No bond fixed.

MR. HENRY PAGE, a hatter on Harrison street, some time since found a pocket-book containing $1,700 belonging to Mrs. Croxley, and returned it to her, refusing any reward. A few days since Mr. Page was invited to attend a birthday party, given by Mrs. Croxley's daughter, and at its close was presented with a $50 note.

The following Sergeants-at-Arms have been appointed for the Democratic Convention to seat the delegates and to preserve order until the Convention is properly organized, viz: J. H. Redmond, Wm. Lueby, S. W. Black, Ed. Menden, John Wetters, W. Long, B. Dannenhof, Wm. Kelly, Ed. Dolan, H. Kelly, J. F. Mehan, Wm. McHugh, Henry Shaefer, Jno. Cook and J. Dewald.

AQUILLES of incorporation of the Volksblatt Publishing Company have been sent to the Secretary of State at Columbus. The capital stock of the new company is fixed at $150,000, divided into shares of $5 each, and the incorporators are Fred. Haasler, his half brother, Col. Leopold Markbreit, Chas. P. Taft, Esq., and other gentlemen.

JUDGE JAMES SAFFIN is a candidate for the office of Police Judge. He is a Democrat of the old school—most too radical in his democracy to suit some people—but no one named is better qualified for the place, and no one can be chosen in whom the public will have more confidence. He has been tried, and the affairs of the whole people will be safe when he is again placed upon the bench.

LIZZIE SELMAN, alias Daniels, alias Mackey, &c., was arrested in company with John A. Snyder yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct, while the latter had three charges preferred against him, namely, of carrying concealed weapons, malicious destruction of property, and disorderly conduct. In the Police Court this morning their cases were continued to the 11th of March.

NATHAN GOLDSMITH became entangled in a difficulty with a rival shoe dealer named Marx, on Fifth street, and when Officer Hilberger attempted to arrest him yesterday, he resisted, and raised considerable disturbance, but was finally persuaded to subside. This morning he was arraigned in the Police Court on two charges, one of disorderly conduct and the other of resisting officers, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $5 and costs.

OFFICERS SHINER and DOHERTY, of the Third-street Station, last night made a raid upon the keno game owned by Jim Davis, at No. 73 West Fifth street. This place has proved about the hardest to "pull," and the raid did not prove as successful last night as might have been, as the "house" was not captured. However, George Greathouse and Jim Davis were taken at a game and their case continued to March 17th, under bonds of $500 each.

THE Theological and Religious Library Association held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon and elected the following officers: President, Rev. William T. Moore; Vice President, Prof. L. J. Evans; Treasurer, Robt. Brown, Jr.; Corresponding Secretary, Rev. John G. Adams; Recording Secretary, John D. Caldwell. Vacancies were filled in the Board of Directors. The Board consists of twenty-one Directors—seven for three years each, and consist of the following members: 1876—W. C. McCune, L. J. Evans, Erwin House, J. G. Monfort, J. G. Adams, John D. Caldwell, John Goddard; 1877—W. J. Bruce, Robt. Brown, Jr., Geo. F. Davis, M. B. Hagans, Samuel Mease, S. K. Leavitt, Max Lilienthal; 1878—W. T. Moore, —, Thomas Vickers, T. S. Yocum, E. T. Carson, R. K. Moore, John M. Walden.

An appeal for seeds for Kansas and Nebraska: To the public—Hearing of the distress which now exists in Kansas and Nebraska, caused by the ravages of the grasshopper, action was taken at a resolution passed at a meeting of the Horticultural Society, on last Saturday, appointing the undersigned a committee to solicit and receive any donations of seeds, cuttings, or money to buy seeds, to be sent to those who have been rendered destitute by the grasshopper plague. We are directed to make an appeal through the daily and weekly press, asking gardeners, farmers and others to contribute seeds and cuttings or money to buy the same to do so at as early a day as possible, as the planting season is near at hand. All such contributions will be receipted for and promptly forwarded on being left at H. G. Stone & Co.'s, Nos. 40 and 42 East Pearl street, Cincinnati, or to either of the Committee.

F. G. CARY, R. M. MOORE. DETECTIVE CARY, of this city, has returned from Selma, Texas, where he had been employed to clear away the terrible force of wife murder made against Mr. Faust, formerly of this city. The circumstances are in brief: Mr. Faust married, a year or more ago, a Texas girl, and shortly after his marriage the young wife and her sister were attacked in the night during Mr. Faust's absence, the sister killed and Faust's wife left for dead. She subsequently recovered, however, but without the use of her eyes, as they had been destroyed by the strokes of the assassin's knife. Suspicion fell upon a planter in that vicinity, who was a rejected lover of the girl, but he in turn, hired witnesses it is supposed, threw the blame on to the husband, and he was imprisoned. Detective Cary has succeeded in controverting the evidence of the witnesses, and proving that the husband, and he will be released. The theory of the murder is that it was done by an assassin hired by the girl's former lover, who had made frequent threats of revenge.

WOOD'S THEATRE.—Mr. Stetson is doing a fair business at this house with his play, "Neck and Neck." It is handsomely presented, and deserves a cordial recognition from all lovers of the sensational drama. It will be repeated again this evening.

Illinois Robbers.

A bold and unusually successful gang of robbers has been broken up at Illinois, Ill., and some of the members have been sentenced to prison.

Among the band are two men named Green and Crane. Crane stole a pair of mules and ran them off to St. Louis. On his return he told Green where the mules were stabled and gave Green a bill of sale of them.

Green then went to the owner of the mules and told him he thought he could not find the mules, and that he had sold them to Ben Crane, and then went off to his Sabbath-school class with a satisfied air.

The robbery of cars and the loss of property so extensive that Sken, the agent, consulted with Captain Green (who is his brother-in-law) about hiring a watchman—course you ought, said Green, and straightway Green, Ben Crane and others of the gang were hired or volunteered to watch the very premises they were robbing. The robbing of Green was stopped. Then Crane and Green told Sken "he had spoilt it all by telling a constable that the depot was watched; if he hadn't told the constable, they would have caught the rascals."

The boldest operation so far unearthed is the one for which Mitchell Haveron is held. Haveron and Sam Dickinson went to Toledo and presented to the house of Hays & Co. certified bills of lading and invoices for five cars of wheat shipped from Illinois. The papers purported to be sent by the Chicago & North Western R. Co. As the transaction appeared all right, $500 was advanced. In a short time the forgery was discovered, and Haveron was pursued and arrested. Sam Dickinson now confesses that Green forged all the papers.

On one occasion they stole a lot of timber seed from a nursery at Illinois, and then Green loaded it up, and took it to St. W. A. agent. As the transaction appeared all right, $500 was advanced. In a short time the forgery was discovered, and Haveron was pursued and arrested. Sam Dickinson now confesses that Green forged all the papers.

The gang had no regular "fence," the proceeds of their robberies being disposed of as circumstances and occasion required.

The officers are in possession of facts which point to the criminality of several other men in Sangamon county of very respectable antecedents and associations, and the indictments against the present parties will not be pushed until the last one of the gang is caught.

A New History of Pinchback.

The following history of Pinchback's life, from a Washington correspondent of the New York Sun, will be read with interest by the people of this vicinity who think they know something about him:

His father was an old Georgian named John Pinchback, who lived in the city of New Orleans in the Creek war. He had a favorite quadroon slave girl who bore him one child. The old man was a man of letters, as well as a follower of Mars. His favorite poet was Shelley, and in a sportive mood he dubbed his illegitimate slave son Percy Bysshe Shelley Pinchback. Holmes moved to Mississippi in 1818, and became a very successful planter. He had, however, one ruling passion, which usually impoverished him. He was an inveterate gambler, and his favorite pastime was traveling up and down the Mississippi on a steamboat.

In those days there was always high gaming on Mississippi steamers. They were the favorite resort of all the great gamblers in the country. One day Major Holmes took a trip on the Magnolia, and became engaged in an unlimited game of draw poker with the commander, St. Clair Thomasson. Holmes had an unusually bad streak of luck. He undertook to "blind" the captain on two pairs of sixes. Thomasson, however, was a better gambler, and he soon "raised" Holmes out of cash. In a fit of desperation, the old man "put up" little Pinch, as he always called his boy. A show of hands revealed three deuces in Thomasson's, and of course Holmes' two pair of sixes were nowhere. With perhaps a slight sigh of regret the old man bid little Pinch good-bye, and went back to his plantation a poorer, but not a wiser man.

Pinchback now became the valet of Capt. Thomasson, and made himself generally useful on board the Magnolia. He was quick and bright, and had learned to read and write while with his father. When the city of New Orleans was taken by the Federal forces, Pinchback, having saved considerable money which he had picked up in various ways during his river life, invested it in a restaurant. He was a good caterer, tasty and neat, and ambitious of being the first in the business. In a very short time his restaurant became famous, and was largely patronized by the speculators who looked for their money as well as the officers of the Federal army.

To accommodate all the tastes of his lavish patrons, Pinchback opened a faro bank in the second story, and a private can-can in the third story. His intimate knowledge of the river, and his extensive acquaintance with the negroes, gave him exceptionally good facilities for obtaining the latest news. Cotton speculators, blockade runners' agents, Confederate spies, and all other classes who had any interest in sending or receiving messages through the lines always found Pinchback ready to do them a good turn for a consideration. Of course he prospered.

Indeed he made piles of money, and having good business qualifications he invested judiciously in real estate. He got into trouble, however, just before Ben Butler was relieved of the command of the Department of the Gulf. The General's brother wanted to monopolize the contraband trade as well as the cotton plantations. In fact, another Pinchback interfered, and Butler had him arrested on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. He was tried, convicted, and sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of years, but was released only after a few months' confinement.

He was now a rich man and courted the daughters of a rich planter, who, prior to the war, had been a large slaveholder. There was quite a flutter in aristocratic colored circles over this event. Pinchback was not of the creme de la creme. He was a contraband—a low nigger who had become rich through very questionable means. His bride was of the first colored circle, cultivated, accomplished, and rich. Her parents objected strongly to the match, but the dusky maid was constant in her fidelity to her handsome, clever lover, and finally her pleadings moved the obdurate heart of her sire and the twin were made one.

Pinchback's star was now in the ascendant. The war over, the slaves emancipated and enfranchised, he became a great political power. His influence over the ignorant blacks was almost unlimited, and he really laid the foundation of the King power, which has been dominant in Louisiana since the close of the war. He discovered Warmoth, who was an obscure municipal judge, and attracted by his winning ways and handsome personal appearance, as well as by his intellectual power, Pinchback determined to make him the leader of the Republican party in Louisiana.

He suggested him as a candidate for "Delegate to Congress from the Territory of Louisiana," and instructed his agents to direct all the negroes not only to cast their ballots for him, but also to contribute a dollar apiece as an election fund. Warmoth was elected and enriched at the same time. Pinchback's little scheme netted him about $40,000. Warmoth came to Washington and spent the winter; but, as all remember, the Territorial Delegates were not admitted.

When the State was reconstructed Warmoth was elected Governor. Pinchback could have made himself Lieutenant Governor, but he was not ambitious of the honor. He preferred to be a member of the Legislature. There was more money in it, as well as more advantages to him as a politician. He had his eye even then on the United States Senatorship. This was his ambition, and it is not strange, therefore, that he should be so devoted to his radical friends deserting him when he was about to pluck the long coveted prize.

While in the State Legislature, Pinchback was the captain-general of the jobbers. Every scheme that was brought in had to receive his approval before it could have the slightest show. Of course he made money rapidly. He certainly made half a million of dollars, one while he was a legislator. It is admitted by well-informed New Orleans people that Pinchback's property would be worth, under favorable circumstances, fully three quarters of a million. He has still unlimited influence with the negroes, notwithstanding he has broken with Packard and Casey.
